

Match the Pronoun with Its Noun

In the following paragraph, there are lots of pronouns. Circle each one, then link it to the noun it replaces. The first one is done for you as an example.

Chocolate first came from Central America. It was originally called Xocolatl. When Spanish explorers travelled to the New World, they found many unknown foods there. These were brought back as gifts for their kings and queens. In 1847, Joseph Fry made the first chocolate bar, which he called 'Chocolate Cream'. British people must love chocolate, because on average we eat about 8.5kg each every year, which could make us very fat!

Oh dear! This paragraph has far too many pronouns and not enough nouns. Can you work out which noun each pronoun relates to? Watch out - there are some tricky ones!

When Andy the astronaut came back to Earth after his two-man space voyage, he had lots of news to tell his friends and family. They were all fascinated by his tales of what it was like but especially his young nephew Tommy. He listened to stories about them flying in their ship round Venus where he nearly crashed it into a volcano! However, this doesn't seem to have put him off space at all, as he's now doing a project about his uncle for school.
